Nobody wants to finance a nuclear power plant – absolutely nobody? Despite enormous up-front investment needs, notorious costs overruns and renewable energies already cheaper, new nuclear power plants still find funds. How come? The Joint Project's event will provide answers: Fresh intelligence on the nuclear industry's own plans of finding fresh money will be followed by our campaigners explaining how the Czech Republic, Hungary, Bulgaria and Poland make nuclear power plants possible. After the panel discussion your questions will be answered. Join in for the Open House at 3:15pm CET.
